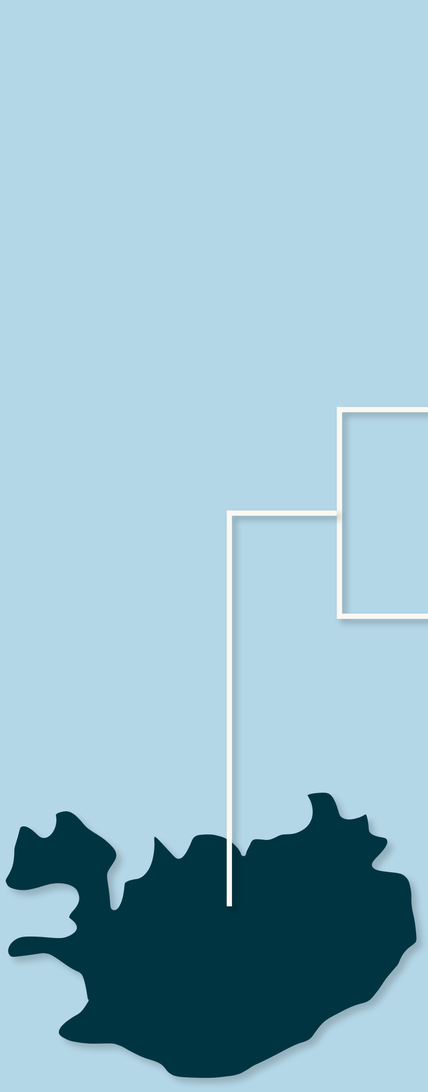
RUBRIK?

ICELAND – the Nordic country with the most limited welfare state – has more women managers than the other Nordic countries.



NORWEGIAN affirmative action laws have failed in boosting women's overall career success.

SWEDEN'S market reforms have benefited women both in their roles as employees and business-owners? Or is there a lesson to be learned from these observations.